

Long lines at Eleanor Roosevelt High School demonstrate Greenbelt's long tradition of voter participation (and Democratic party loyalty).

Greenbelt: Still Solidly Blue

by James Giese

No matter what the country does in this Presidential election, Greenbelt still is a solidly blue, Democratic Party city according to unofficial election results for the four Greenbelt precincts. The number of Greenbelters who turned out this year exceeded the 2000 turnout by about eight percent, although the percentage of registered voters voting appeared to have been less. John F. Kerry and John Edwards, Barbara Mikulski and Steny Hoyer each won their contests by a 4 to 1 margin. In Greenbelt, county ballot questions H and I relating to adding at-large county councilmembers, editorially opposed by this paper, were disapproved,

Greenbelt Is Worldwide

Global media representatives showed up in Greenbelt during Tuesday's election. Leila and Joseph Otterman said that their oldest son Michael called from Sweden to say that CNN's international newscast showed the long line of voters at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. News Review staffer Marat Moore also ran into BBC's World News Radio at Greenbelt Elementary shortly after voting began.

Question H by nearly a 2 to 1 vote.

While nationally a tight presidential race remained undecided Tuesday night, in Greenbelt Kerry handily won by 4,701 votes over George W. Bush, garnering 80 percent of the Greenbelt votes cast. Kerry improved the margin of victory over that of Al Gore in 2000 when he won in Greenbelt with 73 percent of the votes cast.

Ralph Nader, who got almost 5 percent of the votes in 2000 as a Green Party candidate obtained less than one percent (75 votes) this time as a Populist Party candidate. The Green Party candidate, David Cobb, received only 20 votes in Greenbelt this year.

Voters Talk about Issues That Affected their Votes

by Marat Moore

Heavy turnout and long waits didn't deter Greenbelters determined to vote their convictions in Tuesday's national elections. At Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) voters waited up to three hours to cast their touch-screen ballots, while more than 100 early risers lined up outside Greenbelt Elementary School before the doors opened at 7 a.m.

Interviews with voters as they left the polls throughout the day in several local precincts show that most consider the election critically important to the country, even though they may hold opposing views on the presidential candidates.

"This election is important. It could determine the next four years of my life," said Steven Scruggs, who cast his vote at Springhill Lake Elementary School. "With all the chaos going on right now, having the right leader will make a difference. I think we should never have targeted Iraq. The other issues I'm concerned about are health care and taxes as they affect the middle class."

Outside the Community Center Shawn Higgins described herself as a conservative who voted for President Bush. "When you're in a war, you don't change course," said

Council Praises Services Of Mediator Philip Brandis

by Sandy Smith

At the October 25 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council, council recognized the services of Philip Brandis on the Community Mediation Board, approved contracts for the design and construction of the Greenbelt Skateboard Park and moved ahead on a contract for the theater renovation project. There was a brief update on the Greenbelt Station development.

Brandis

Council recognized the work of Philip Brandis who stepped down from the Community Mediation Board after six years of service. A founding member of the board, he contributed greatly to its formation and development. The board provides services to Greenbelt residents through referrals from the city and county. Brandis has also been instrumental in developing strategies to educate the public about the value of mediation and the availability of the program. Councilmember Konrad Herling also spoke of Brandis'

Artful Afternoon Features Garland for Holiday Tree

The November Artful Afternoon will be held on Sunday, November 7 from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Community Center.

This month participants can help make the garland for the City of Greenbelt's holiday tree. Bring neighbors, friends and family to Artful Afternoon at the Community Center. There will be plenty to do, including two workshops, two gallery openings and a free puppet theater performance.

The tree garland will be created from recycled materials, including plastic bags, ribbon, strings of beads, caution tape and more. Greenbelt artist Elizabeth Morisette, weaver of collections of kids' toys, combs, bottle caps and Star Wars cards, will lead the workshop. Morisette's creations have been seen in local galleries and throughout the Community Center. Bring weather-resistant materials for the garland (materials will also be provided). Garland-making will take place from 1 to 3 p.m. Morisette will also be teaching classes for children and adults in the upcoming winter quarter.

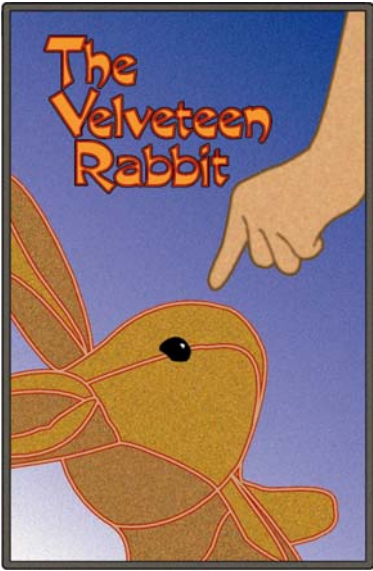

Take another look at existence with artist Jordan Tierney. The workshop from 1 to 3 p.m. is in conjunction with her new exhibition in the Community Center Gallery. SHARD.LAB – An Accounting of Incidentals, is an interactive installation “in pursuit of the fleeting evidence of existence,” in the artist's words.

Artists' Reception

Join in the artists' reception from 3 to 5 p.m. in the gallery. The installation will remain on view through December 5. The Community Center Gallery is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily whenever the room is not reserved. Call 240-542-2057 to arrange a tour or talk for groups.

Be sure to join Resident Artist Tai Hwa Goh next door at the Greenbelt Municipal Building from 2 to 4 p.m. for the reception of her new show “Layers.” Goh's mystical and meditative works, using hand-waxed Korean Soon-ji paper in sculptural constructions explore layers of memory and selfhood. Many will remember Tai Hwa from this year's great butterfly and wish-cocoon project at the Fall Fest at Schrom Hills Park.

At 3 p.m., there will be a free performance of children's favorite “The Velveteen Rabbit” with "The Velveteen Rabbit" will be performed by the Mum Puppet-theatre of Philadelphia at 3 p.m.

Mum Puppettheatre of Philadelphia. A classic story of childhood and love, Mum Puppettheatre's signature family show uses shadows, masks and puppets of all kinds. This Velveteen Rabbit production celebrates its 11th anniversary of making audiences all over the world gasp with delight to see a stuffed toy become real. This show is designed for all ages.

From 1 to 5 p.m., visitors can see Greenbelt's own Artists-in-Residence and Greenbelt Pottery members demonstrate ceramics, stained glass, drawing and additional media as they tour the Community Center art studios.

Historic Perspectives

For historic perspectives on this community, stop at the historic home at 10-B Crescent Road operated by the Greenbelt Museum where guided tours will be available from 1 to 5 p.m. The Greenbelt Museum also invites people to enjoy the museum exhibit at the Greenbelt Community Center – “Living the Healthy Life” exploring the history of sport, health and fitness in the New Deal Era. This exhibit is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Mark the calendar for the Festival of Lights Art and Craft Show, coming up December 4 and 5 at the Community Center. Over 40 artists and crafters will exhibit. A drop-in craft workshop on December 4 will allow parents to do holiday shopping at the show while their six to 10 year old children make an art project.

Artful Afternoons are held on the first Sunday of every month at the Greenbelt Community Center, at 15 Crescent Road. Programs such as these provide regular proof that “art works in Greenbelt,” as stated in the city's mission statement on the arts. Artful Afternoons are sponsored by the City of Greenbelt Department of Recreation. For additional information call Barbara Dickey Davis at 240-542-2062.

MVA to Be Closed On Veterans' Day

The Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA) will close its full-service and express offices on Thursday, November 11, in observance of Veterans' Day. All Vehicle Emissions Inspection Program stations will also be closed. Online registration renewals and many other time-saving eMVA options are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week at www.marylandmva.com. For additional information call 1-800-950-1MVA (1682).

"Shard Man" is one of the pieces on display by Jordan Tierney from her current exhibition "SHARD.LAB."

THANKS

I wish to thank Cindy Comproni, the manager of the Greenbelt Federal Credit Union, for letting me show my paintings in the lobby of the bank last month. It was a special honor and the tellers of the bank were all so very kind and gracious.

I want to thank my sister Judy David for her lovely flute music at the artists' reception on Friday, October 22. It was truly a festive occasion.

I also would like to thank Judy Bell of the Greenbelt News Review for her kind review of the show.

THANKS

Please let me give a long overdue, heartfelt “Thank You” to readers concerned about my precarious health. Your prayers and help are precious beyond expression; I am deeply grateful. Fortunately, no surgery was necessary and I am improving rapidly. I was especially gratified to be called an “all around good guy” in the Greenbelt News Review.

Lorraine Nuzzo

Former Greenbelter Lorraine Elizabeth Nuzzo, 82, of Kenosha, Wisc., died Wednesday, October 27, 2004, in the Woodstock Health and Rehabilitation Center in Kenosha.

Born February 28, 1922 in Connelsville, Pa., she was the only child of Leo and Olive Hill Mullen. The Mullens were Greenbelt pioneers; they were the 13th family to move into Greenbelt. Mrs. Nuzzo attended schools in Greenbelt and was a 1942 graduate of Greenbelt High School.

She met her late husband, Al, through a friend. It was 1942 and they were boating at Greenbelt Lake. They had a day full of fun and laughter, sometimes rocking the boat although neither could swim. He was in the U.S. Army.

Then, from 1943 to 1945, she served in the U.S. Navy Waves as a Seaman First Class.

When Mr. Nuzzo was discharged they became engaged and in August, 1946 Lorraine Mullen and Albert J. Nuzzo were married in nearby Holy Redeemer Catholic Church. They went to live in her husband's home in Jersey City.

In 1947 Greenbelt Police Chief George Panagoulis invited her husband to apply for a job in the department, saying, "Lorraine's father wants her back here."

They returned to Greenbelt and lived the rest of their lives together in the 12 court of Ridge Road where they raised their two sons.

Mrs. Nuzzo was a member of St. Hugh's Catholic Church parish. She was an avid volunteer at her children's school (St. Hugh's). Later, when the boys were grown, she worked part time at the Greenbelt Convenience Store. She enjoyed traveling across country with her husband, playing cards, watching baseball on TV and talking to friends and neighbors.

Her husband preceded her in death in 1998. Earlier that year the News Review published an ad written by their younger son, A.J., in the form of "a love letter to my wonderful parents." The letter told of the ups and downs of his life but mostly how much he loved them both. He wrote, "I remember how happy I was to see you, Mother, serve us hot dogs at lunch on Thursdays at St. Hugh's. I was sure not to be out of line that day."

"I want to thank you, Mother, for your hard work ethic. You got us fed, the clothes washed and the house cleaned. By today's standards, Mother, Bill Gates couldn't afford you."

He thanked them both for coming to all his ball games. "I wouldn't trade any of our time together for the world," he said. "The way I turned out is a direct reflection on the great job you did raising me. I love and respect you both very much!"

After her husband's death and 54 years of living in Greenbelt, Mrs. Nuzzo moved to Kenosha to live with her son and family. While there she attended church with them at First United Methodist Church.

She is survived by sons Robert Alan Nuzzo and his wife Kathleen of Kenosha and Albert John Nuzzo, Jr. and his wife Patricia of Upper Marlboro; four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated on Wednesday, November 3, 2004, at St. Hugh's Catholic Church. Interment was in Gate of Heaven Cemetery, Silver Spring. Arrangements were by the Beall Funeral Home, Bowie.

Memorial Service Paul Evans, Sr.

A memorial Mass for Paul Evans, Sr. will be held at St. Hugh's Catholic Church on Saturday, November 6, 2004 at 11 a.m. Msgr. Robert Amey will be the celebrant.

Memorial Service Isadore Parker

A memorial service will be held for Isadore (Izzy) Parker on Thursday, November 11, 2004 at 7:30 p.m. at Mishkan Torah Synagogue.

Greenbelters were saddened to hear of the death of pioneer Greenbelter Lorraine Nuzzo. Mrs. Nuzzo had lived in Greenbelt 54 years before going to Wisconsin to live with her son and family. Her funeral was Wednesday, November 3 at St. Hugh's Catholic Church.

Congratulations to Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Roberto Fernandez, son of Kathleen Fernandez of Greenbelt, who recently received the Combat Action Ribbon. The ribbon is awarded to servicemembers who have actively participated in ground or surface combat after March 1, 1961. Fernandez is currently assigned at Naval Construction Battalion Center, Gulfport, Miss. He is a 1996 graduate of Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

A Rain of Yellow Leaves

Last Sunday an elusive breeze primed a rain of sun-shot yellow leaves in Greenbelt. (Never mind the rest of the world; Indian summer was ending and fall coming in here.) A morning walk with the dog around Greenbelt Lake didn't fully satisfy so at noon – minus dog – it was on to the blue blazes trail at the far end of Northway, northward by a metal sign: No Bicycles in Woods.

Immediately woods take over – the abundant, waiting woods. The leaf-strewn, root-ribbed path is marked periodically by splotches of blue paint on trees; the trail twists along slopes and contours that could have been traversed centuries ago by Native Americans. Every so often a breeze starts a sudden shower of maple and other leaves; you have to stop and stare at those reigning sights.

In the distance hums the barely audible susurrus of traffic on the unseen Baltimore-

Washington Parkway. Beaver Dam Creek cuts in to the right. After a mile or less the trail comes to the rusting cyclone fence raised six-foot-plus high to mark the southern border of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. Breaks in the fence and paths in the fallen leaves belie signs that declare "No Trespassing"; doubtless deer roam through at night. Along the way a chrome-legged kitchen chair – who brought it there? – sits on high, open ground by a thick-girthed, aged oak. Soon GHI homes and Greenbelt Elementary School show in the distance through the thinning trees. Research Road is near; time to turn back.

Near Northway a last shower of yellow leaves rains on the woods. By the empty ballfields the car still sits in the sun; with it the everyday world is regained. But the woods and the trail and the fallen leaves, remain.

Students Absorb Parking Increase

by Bay Woods

The price of student parking permits in Prince George’s County’s high schools recently quadrupled when the price of a permit went up from five to 20 dollars. The city has monitored the areas adjacent to Eleanor Roosevelt High School as part of a traffic study and has noticed no “spill over” parking, according to City Manager Michael McLaughlin. Area residents were concerned that students would park on neighborhood streets rather than pay the increased fee.

The county school board was responsible for the increased price of student parking. Officer John Rodgers, Eleanor Roosevelt’s school resource officer, noted that when the school board made the decision the schools had no say.

Rodgers said that the school had installed “No Parking” signs on the Roosevelt side of Hanover Parkway. He said that the school has seen virtually no decrease in the rates of student parking as a result of the price increase and concluded that students have not been seeking alternative parking areas.

McLaughlin’s assessment of the city’s ongoing traffic study in the area also arrives at the conclusion that the price of student parking at Roosevelt has not significantly affected parking patterns in the surrounding areas.

Planetarium Program On Endeavor’s Flight

On November 12 at 7:30 p.m. the Owens Science Center will present “Hello Earth, Greetings From Endeavor.” Astronaut Al Worden, pilot of Apollo 15, was so awed with his experience traveling to the moon that he wrote an entire book of poetry describing his experience, from the hard work of training, to the awe of seeing the moon and the earth from space to the bitterness of dealing with “heroship” upon his return to Earth. This poetry has been put to music with NASA photos from the mission in a presentation that will renew anyone’s love of the moon. Some of the language may not be considered appropriate for younger audiences. A tour of the current night sky will follow the presentation. There is a fee.

Pumpkin Poll Results

As usual, I sat on my front porch Halloween night and gave out candy, but tried to scare the kids by asking them who they would vote for if they could vote on Tuesday. A lot of the adults thought they could participate but I turned them in to TrueVoteMD for trying to steal the election. More adults told kids to vote for Bush than for Kerry. I think that the vote represents a good cross section of what the kids think.

Count	Name
28	Kerry
21	Bush
7	(no answer)
4	Nader
3	I dunno
1	Mom and Dad
1	Dora the explorer or Batman
1	the Libertarian candidate
1	David Cobb, the Green candidate

I was most impressed that almost all of the kids knew who they were supporting, including the one that voted for “mom and dad” instead of Rodney Roberts, suggested by his mother. I was most frightened by being able to sit out there in my shirtsleeves. In previous years we had already had frost by this time. Global warming is coming faster than we can control it.

Higgins, who was accompanied by her 14-year-old daughter. “Even if you don’t agree with what George Bush is doing at least he’s taken a clear direction.”

Osman Longa, who also voted at the Community Center, said that he was most concerned about the “moral activities” of the country, including gay marriage and abortion. “We need a safe harbor” on those issues, he said.

Tawana Raney, another Center voter, said, “Every election is important. I haven’t missed one since 1980. It’s the only way to let your voice be heard.”

She said she was happy to see the big turnout. “I hope it inspires people to participate in state and local elections which are even more important than national elections. We need change. It’s important for the war and even more so for the economy.”

First-time voter Enid Grempler made her first trip to Greenbelt Elementary School in the morning but weary children prompted her to take them home and return after lunch.

“I don’t classify myself as a Democrat but I’m really concerned about some issues,” she said. “The deal-breakers for me are education and abortion, to keep it legal. Al Sharpton’s speech at the Democratic Convention about the four girls who were killed years ago in Birmingham had an impact on me. I love this country and care where it’s headed for the next four years.”

For Colby Storck, who also voted at Greenbelt Elementary, her goal was to defeat John Kerry. “The rights of the unborn are very important to me,” she said.

Jennifer Cooper decided to spend her first election experience volunteering as a poll watcher, gathering reports of voting problems at ERHS. “I have 13 complaints,” said Cooper, 21 at about 4 p.m. “Most are about the long lines and some people who say they’re registered were told they had to get provisional ballots. They were pretty upset.”

Asked what motivated her to take on the job as poll watcher, she said, “I feel that this is a really important election and I didn’t want any tampering with votes. Every vote should count, even those on the other side.”

At ERHS, Tupac Derenoncourt sported a T-shirt lettered with the words, “Vote or Die.” Asked about the message, he said he got it at a party put on by citizenchange.com, an organization formed to empower youth voters. “The slogan itself is important,” he said. “It applies whether you’re talking about a draft or the flu vaccine. Either way, it’s hitting close to home.”

At Springhill Lake Elementary School first-time voter April Lee said, “I’ve never been involved before but what is happening in this country is wrong. The war is wrong and there’s too much support for rich people when people like me with kids are having a hard time making it.”

Homeland security and the war in Iraq were key issues for Jason and Crystal DeMond, who said that they were “very interested” in voting. “This is our first election,” said Jason.

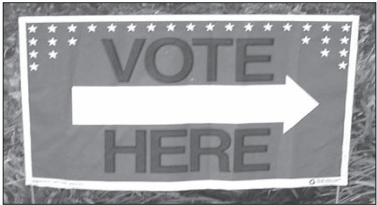

Another new voter, Chris Coram, said he was voting because “Iraq needs to come to an end and the troops need to come home.”

Joyce Thompson, who accompanied Coram from the polls, said that as a former member of the armed services, “I’m tired of young people dying in Iraq for reasons that are unclear. I have a lot of friends in the service.

“I also don’t agree with the president about stem cell research,” said Thompson, who works in a health clinic and describes herself as “very pro-choice.”

Younger voters were much in evidence in Greenbelt on election day and Carolyn Larkin said her 29-year-old son Phillip had made a decision after going to the polls.

He said young people need to volunteer as election judges,” she said. “That’s something he’s planning to do the next time around.”

Waiting to Vote

News Review staffer Judi Bordeaux showed up to vote at Eleanor Roosevelt High School on Election Day at three separate times.

At 9 a.m. the line was all the way out to the sidewalk where the electioneers were standing, just to get to the alphabetized lines. Bordeaux decided to come back later.

At 11:15 a.m. the line was all the way down the length of the high school. She saw a neighbor who had just finished voting who had been there since 8 a.m.

Returning at 1:30 p.m., she got in line and it took one hour.

Delegate Justin Ross was there giving out bottles of water and Mayor Judith Davis was helping to get people in the appropriate lines.

Bordeaux reported that she overheard a voter say that she found the stories on the issues and the candidates in the News Review “very useful.”

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department.
Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Carjacking

October 28, 7:10 p.m., Greenway Center, the victims advised that they had entered their vehicle in the parking lot of the CVS Pharmacy when two men approached the vehicle. One of the men opened the driver's door and pointed a handgun at the victims. A passenger in the vehicle lunged across the vehicle in an attempt to take the gun from the man, knocking the driver out of the vehicle and falling out of the vehicle himself. Both suspects then entered the victim's vehicle and drove away. The victim's vehicle, described as a 2004 Chevrolet Suburban, was recovered a short time later unoccupied in Suitland. The suspects are described as two black males, 18 to 25 years of age with thin builds; one was 5'7", wearing a gray coat with a red stripe and blue jeans. The second was 5'10" with a dark complexion, wearing a black hooded sweatshirt and a red bandana.

Drugs

October 23, 3:49 p.m., 6100 block Breezewood Court, a resident man was arrested and charged with possession of paraphernalia. Police observed three suspicious people sitting in front of an apartment building who all quickly walked into the building upon seeing the police and then came back outside a short time later. Located inside the stairwell area was paraphernalia commonly used to store marijuana. The man claimed ownership of the paraphernalia and was released on citation pending trial.

October 26, 1:36 a.m., Greenbelt and Mandan Roads, a non-resident woman and man were arrested and charged with possession of paraphernalia after police stopped a vehicle for an equipment violation. Upon approaching the vehicle police detected the odor of what was believed to be marijuana. Located in the vehicle was paraphernalia commonly used to store marijuana. Both suspects were released on citation pending trial.

October 26, 11:02 a.m., pedestrian underpass near 12 Crescent Road, a nonresident youth was arrested for possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia when police responded to a report of two youths allegedly smoking marijuana. The youths were located and one of them was found to be in possession of suspected marijuana and paraphernalia commonly used to ingest marijuana. The youth was released to a guardian pending action by the Juvenile Justice System.

October 29, 12:47 a.m., 9100 block Edmonston Court, a resident man was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana after police stopped a vehicle for an equipment violation. Upon approaching the vehicle police detected the odor of what was believed to be marijuana. The man was found to be in possession of a quantity of suspected marijuana. He was released to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

Theft

October 23, 4:52 p.m., 6100 block Breezewood Drive, a non-resident man was arrested and charged with theft over $500, three counts of theft under $500, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, trespass, possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia. Beltway Plaza security officers observed the man driving the victim's vehicle in the parking lot of the mall. He had previously been banned from the mall by agents of the property. The man exited the vehicle and ran to the 6100 block of Breezewood Drive where he was apprehended. A computer check revealed that the suspect had an open warrant with the Prince George's County Sheriff's Department, that the tag on the vehicle had been reported stolen and that the vehicle he abandoned, a 2000 Chevrolet Cavalier, had been reported stolen October 19. Located in the vehicle was a quantity of suspected marijuana and paraphernalia commonly used to store marijuana. The suspect was released to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner and for service of the warrant.

October 24, 9200 block Edmonston Drive an officer observed an unoccupied vehicle bearing an expired tag. A computer check revealed the tag had been reported stolen to Fairfax County (Va.) police. The vehicle was impounded and the owner was released on citation pending trial when he came to the station to inquire about his vehicle.

October 25, 1:13 a.m., Edmonston Court and Edmonston Terrace, a nonresident man was arrested and charged with theft and possession of burglary tools. Police responded to a report of a theft in progress, with the suspect allegedly breaking into a vehicle, taking one of the rear taillight assemblies out of the vehicle and then attempting to remove the other one. Police observed a vehicle leaving the area that was the same make and model as the victim's and had no working taillights. The vehicle was stopped and the driver could not produce any identification. The victim's taillight assembly was located in the vehicle, along with tools commonly used to break into and steal vehicle parts. The suspect was released to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

October 26, 9:02 p.m., 7700 block Hanover Parkway, a non-resident man was arrested and charged with theft. Police responded to a report of a vehicle theft in progress, with two males getting out of another vehicle and taking the victim's 1997 Dodge Caravan. The vehicle was located in the 7600 block of Hanover Parkway, where police attempted to initiate a traffic stop. The men exited the victim's vehicle and attempted to flee the scene on foot. One of them was taken into custody with the assistance of a canine unit and handler. The second, described as a black male, 19 years of age, was not apprehended. The arrested man was transported to the hospital for treatment of injuries sustained during apprehension. The vehicle that the suspects occupied prior to taking the victim's vehicle, a 1997 Plymouth Voyager, had been previously reported stolen and was recovered.

Trespass

October 22, 12:35 p.m., 9200 block Springhill Lane, a nonresident man was arrested and charged with trespass after he was observed on the property of Springhill Lake Apartments after he had been banned from the complex by agents of the property. He was released on citation pending trial.

Greenknolls' Thomas Is Halloween Queen

by Frann Fendlay

Every year Greenknolls' Fran Thomas creates a spectacular Halloween display in her yard at 6 Greenknolls Place. She adds more Halloween-theme decorations every year and starts decorating weeks before Halloween. Her special effects include a fire-breathing dragon, smoking cauldron, giant rats, skeletons emerging from the ground, a dozen or so elaborately carved pumpkins and an ominous cloud of fog. This year neighbors were greeted with refreshments and festive goodies like pumpkin punch and finger shaped cookies. Everyone in Lake-wood and surrounding neighborhoods is invited to come to see what the "Halloween Queen" has concocted each year.

land and won Greenbelt by a margin of 5,275 votes over her Republican challenger, E. J. Pipkin. With 84.5 percent of the votes cast, her victory margin was slightly better than Senator Paul Sarbanes margin in 2000. Green Party candidate Maria Allwine got 142 votes from this city.

Fifth District Congressmember Steny H. Hoyer, who was re-elected in his district, also won handily in Greenbelt by a margin of 5,121 votes over former Berwyn Heights Mayor Brad Jewitt. Hoyer's margin of victory in Greenbelt was slightly less than in 2000, however, even though he received 600 more votes than in that election. Greenbelter Bob Auerbach, running on the Green Party ticket for this office received 308 votes (4.2 percent).

Ballot Questions

Greenbelt voted on the 10 county ballot questions in the same way as did county voters. Question H, which would add two at-large members to the Prince George's County Council, failed in Greenbelt by 4,294 votes against to 2,376 in favor. Also losing in Greenbelt was Question I, but by a smaller margin, 3,304 votes against to 2,982 for. Question I would make at-large members of the county council non-voting members, if Question H was approved. Greenbelters strongly felt that if there are to be at-large councilmembers, the council should retain its present method of selecting its own chair instead of having the highest at-large vote getter automatically become chair. Question F won in Greenbelt with 76 percent of the votes cast. Greenbelters also feel that term-limited councilmembers elected by district should not have the opportunity to run for an at-large seat and supported Question G by almost a 4 to 1 margin.

All five county bond issue ballot questions won handily in Greenbelt and in the county. In Greenbelt, the most popular bond issue was for Library bonds which won by a margin of 89 percent. The least popular was for county buildings. That still received 73 percent of the votes.

Question J, which would limit temporary and part-time employees to 1,800 hours a year won in Greenbelt by the smallest margin of any issue, 3,591 in favor to 2,834 against.

Precinct Votes

The greatest number of votes cast was in precinct 21-13, Greenbelt East with 3,016. Springhill Lake (21-8) cast the fewest with 1,216. Greenbelt North End was the least Democratic of the precincts with Bush/Cheney getting 30 percent of the votes there. The Democrat's strongest precinct was 21-8, Springhill Lake, where 90 percent of the votes were cast for Kerry/Edwards.

Based on unofficial registration figures through August, the turnout for all of Greenbelt was 70 percent as compared to 81 percent in 2000. However, new procedures for removing voters from the list may have increased voter registration figures by not removing persons no longer voting.

support of the Greenbelt Arts Center and Mayor Judith Davis recalled that she and Brandis appeared in a performance together. Brandis responded to the thanks of the council by reprising a speech from "Romeo and Juliet" he delivered in a Greenbelt Arts Center production of "Romeo and Juliet." He plans to continue as a consultant to the board.

Greenbelt Station

City Attorney Robert Manzi gave a brief status report on the city's efforts to stop work on the Greenbelt Station site. A court decision had stopped the work of grading the site that had been observed over the past few weeks by the mayor and many Greenbelters.

Manzi indicated that the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and Metro Land Developers have appealed this decision.

Manzi has a brief period to respond on behalf of the city to this request for appeal; he indicated that in about 10 percent of these cases the court takes up the issue again.

State officials had also advised that work should stop, according to Michael McLaughlin, city manager, but he noted that work had begun again. The council scheduled an executive session for additional discussion and review.

Skateboard Park

Council approved for second reading and adoption two contracts to cover the design and construction and site preparation of the Greenbelt Skateboard Park. Both were approved unanimously. A contract of $180,000 was awarded to the California Landscape and Design, Inc., for design and construction. Another contract for $13,770 went to Bradley Site Design, Inc., for grading, paving, sediment and erosion control, draining, landscaping, site furnishing, fencing, walls and walkways including all plans required for permits (excluding construction) for the skateboard park.

This project received extensive review and discussion by both the council and citizens before reaching this final stage.

Theater Renovation

The city is now ready to move ahead on the second phase of renovation of the Greenbelt theater and awarded a contract of $79,000, exclusive of reimbursable expenses, to GTM Architects, Inc. The second phase starts with construction drawings and ends with completion of the project.

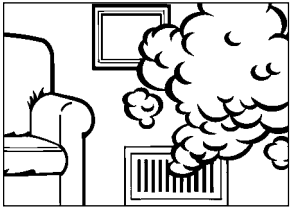

The total cost of this phase is estimated at $550,000 and includes design services, bid documents, construction cost estimates and construction administration. The city projects that the renovation can be completed by October 2005.

ICC Objection

The National Capital Region Transportation Board is again taking up the Intercounty Connector, this time at a November 17 meeting on long-range plans. Public comment was due by October 31, prior to the release of an Environmental Impact Statement by the Federal Highway Administration.

City staff drafted a letter, which council approved, to state again the city's long-standing objections to the Intercounty Connector and to request an extension of the comment period to allow for adequate public review and evaluation.

Metroland Decision Appealed By Developer, Planning Bd.

by James Giese

Metro Land Developers, LLC and the Prince George's Planning Board have filed writs of certiorari with the Maryland Court of Appeals (the supreme court of the state) asking reconsideration of the decisions by the Maryland Court of Special Appeals overturning a circuit court decision and county approvals for the conceptual site plan and preliminary plan of subdivision for the proposed Metroland development. This project is to be built at the Greenbelt Metro station site and upon the A. H. Smith property, the adjacent land to the south.

Although the Court of Appeals decision was handed down some time ago, the court mandate was not issued until September 29. The parties to the court cases had 30 days from that date to appeal. The writs were filed on October 14 and the city, which was not required to respond, did in fact file a response on October 28.

In its decision the Court of Special Appeals had found that special provisions of the county's zoning ordinance for the approval of Metro Planned Communities required a finding by the county that road improvements necessary to meet adequacy of public facilities be planned and funded before a conceptual site plan can be approved because the word "shall," which was used, is defined as mandatory. There had not been a finding of roads for this project being funded in any capital improvements program.

According to the Court of Appeals, the Prince George's District Council (the county council when acting on zoning matters) had approved a plan that failed to meet its own criteria for approval. On this basis the court reversed that action.

The county had argued that, as had been done in other conceptual site plan approvals, the funding of such needed capital improvements could take place as the development was phased in.

Because a conceptual site plan must first be approved before the Prince George's Planning Board (of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission) can approve a preliminary plan of subdivision and because the court had struck down the site plan approval, the court overturned the preliminary plan approval as well, without considering other arguments put forth about the way that plan had been approved.

Errors

In its writ, the Planning Board contended that the Court of Special Appeals had erred in its interpretation of the meaning of the governing section – requiring necessary capital improvements to be planned and funded for Metro Planned Communities. The board contended also that the effect of this decision upon the approval process for conceptual site plans would be cataclysmic and cause the court to be inundated with other cases.

Metro Land argued that the court should have deferred to the expertise of the Planning Board or District Council instead of reaching its own decision and had erred in interpreting the governing section of the zoning code that requires necessary capital improvements.

M. Andree Green and George R.H. Johnson are the Planning

Board's attorneys and Norman D. Rivera and Laurence N. Taub represent Metro Land. Steven M. Gilbert represents the County Council.

Response

In his response for the city, City Solicitor Robert A. Manzi first opposed the writs on some technical grounds. He contended that the Prince George's Planning Board was not a party in the case that could file a writ because the approval of the conceptual site plan was by the District Council and not the Planning Board and that the Court of Special Appeals had reached its decision based upon that approval.

Manzi also contended that Metro Land should have filed two writs, one for the case involving the conceptual site plan and one for the case involving approval of the preliminary plan of subdivision because, although the court had considered the two cases together, they had never been combined into one case.

Manzi also responded to arguments made in the writs. He noted that other zoning ordinance provisions for the approval of conceptual site plans did not apply in this instance because there was specific and special language relating to the approval of Metro Planned Communities and that the court had not erred in its interpretation of the clear meaning of the governing section of the zoning ordinance. He also contended that the court's decision was based upon interpretation of law and not an imposition of the court upon the expertise of the county in deciding the issues of the matter.

Since there is only one area within the county that qualifies for development under the provisions for Metro Planned Communities and since it was a provision of that section of law that was in question, Manzi argued that the case has no far-reaching implications. Manzi further argued that because the language of the section is clear, there is no need for the court to look at legislative intent, as might be the case if there were ambiguity.

The next step is for a three-member panel of the Court of Appeals to consider the writs of certiorari and to determine if the cases were matters that should be heard by the full court. That decision could take from 15 days to three months to be reached, Manzi said.

Greenbelt Arts Center Presents "Godspell"

The Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) will present "Godspell," a musical directed by Jeffery Lesniak, through November 20. Lesniak has been a director of musicals at GAC with past successes such as Nunsense and Nunsense II, both of which played to sold-out audiences. He continues his success with a stellar cast of performers, including Greenbelt's own Miss Greenbelt of 2002, Stephanie Danielson.

"Godspell," which originally opened in 1973, was written by Stephen Schwartz and John-Michael Tebelak. Based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, it tells the story of the last seven days of Christ's life.

In this version the parables have been contemp-orized – Christ's followers are modern people who sing the likes of "Day by Day," "All Good Gifts" and "Turn Back, O Man." Christ (Timbo Longio) himself has been transformed as well, with Judas (Bob Kleinberg) also playing the part of John the Baptist.

Other cast members include Marcus Brown, Robin Covington, Laura Mastroiani, Melissa Mulumba, Courtney Reiter, Lauren Stephenson and BJ Mitchell.

The Greenbelt Arts Center is located at 123 Centerway, behind the post office and below the Co-op Supermarket. For more information call 301-441-8770.

"Godspell" will be performed at the Greenbelt Arts Center through November 20.
